At Sea On an Ice Cake.

Evelyn Buss, one of the victims carried out on the ice off Bluff City on the 20th instant, has kindly consented to give her impressions of the terrible experience for the Gold Digger. She is a frail little woman, who looks incapable of enduring such privations A NEWLY furnished house of six and hardships as she was called upon to endure, but like the rest of the party she faced the danger with the utmost coolness and courage.

"It was four nights before Christmas eve that Audrey Bell, Charles Hagelin, Eric Johnson and myself rounded the point at Bluff City and found open IN PRIVATE family; electric lights; water barring the traft. Miss Bell and I were tied to the sleds, for the way was rough, and we did not pay much attention to the water, the men telling us there was often a crack at that point. Eric Johnson jumped across and ran up town for ropes and then we realized that we were gradually drifting away from the shore. People in Nome seem to think that we were carried away on a little patch of ice, but our floating prison was many miles in extent. "As the crack grew wider Eric Johnson and W. F. Austin, the man he had two pieces of canvas, and we wrapped him in one of the sleds, and let the dogs lie around him to keep him from freezing. He had no hat and his muclucs were wet through, so I opened my trunk and got out an eiderdown matince for his head and tore up a flannel skirt for his feet; the rest of the things in the trunk we used to keep ourselves warm.

"Every one in the party seemed anxious to pretend that there was no danger, the boys made light of everything, and Mr. Austin was full of fun. I did not realize till the next morning that we might drift out on the ice till we were starved or frozen, and then A. I did not see any use making a fuss about it. "That day we kept traveling to keep land in sight, as the position of the ice was continually shifting. All the time we were affoat we must have gone over twenty or thirty miles. I had been ill and could not walk fast enough to keep warm, so they let me lie in one of the sleds with dogs around me. Miss Bell, Johnson and Hagelin kept walking all the time to prevent them from freezing. As, the days went on they sometimes fell asleep on their feet. "All our provisions consisted of some fish for dog feed, and a little corn meal, but we had no salt. On the second day when we began to travel a strange thing happened. We found some wood that Austin had thrown from his sled a few days before. With this the boys were able to light a fire and cook, but it was not till the third day out that I could eat a little corn meal mush, and it revived me wonder-

"We saw a bonfire on the coast the San Francisco; at 9 a. m. Mail closes at third night, one of those, we afterward heard, that were lighted as signals to us. The fourth night it snowed, and we were soaked through. If we had been forced to stay on the ice another night we should probably have frozen, for we were very wet and exhausted.

"But on the morning of the fourth we vere only separated from the beach by a miles of rubber ice. This was our are chance, and we determined to Australia, Canada and the side, a st with a rush we started, the United States for the troops in South lee cracing and breaking all the way. nished 35,775 mares and geldings and 3,- the men. I did not dare to look, but joy, and Mr. Chisman, the road house
